A Furniture Store

Amish Built,

Here at the Wagler Home we've got lots to be thankful for this day.

Steve and I started our furniture business in November 2005 - after years of dreaming of having Daddy home every day, "our" dreams were finally unfolding. Steve worked on a carpenter crew since his teen years, then had his own crew for 10 years working in Indy building homes for the Estridge Group - had lots of good times - yet "our" boys needed Dad and we kept longing to have him home every day.

We were both raised on the farm, so this is different for us to try and run a business. Lou, Kristina, and I took care of most of it for 6 years while Steve was pulled back and forth from remodeling homes to helping us evenings with work. This November we will now be in business 12 years, with Steve home every day for the past 6 years. Thanks to God our Father and to you, our customers for making this possible.

We stock indoor and outdoor furniture besides children's swing sets. Barns, sheds, and cabinets to suit your size and style.

Son in law Jacob helps us 5 days a week, which has been a big help and an added blessing. Our boys Stef, Jesse, and Aden fill in on deliveries and set-ups as well as cleaning and mowing. Neighbor girls lift the load on the dusting end, which is never ending.

If you're in our area feel free to stop and take a look or just to sit in our rocker or swing for a chat.

Our customers have also become our friends. - Give us a call. There may be a warm sweet roll, cookie, or coffee ready and waiting for the relaxed moment on the front porch. - Come join us.!

HOSPICE CARE

According to the Hospice Foundation of America, a third of all Americans choose hospice care when they are facing a life-limiting illness. Opting for hospice care can be one of the most compassionate decisions you and/or your family will ever make.

Hospice of Hope specializes in making their patients feel as comfortable as possible with services provided in a location where they call home. Patients can receive hospice services in their own homes, an assisted living facility, a nursing home, hospital and other residential locations.

Hospice is a special kind of care providing support and comfort for people who need end-of-life services however; it's just not for those affected by an illness. Loved ones also benefit from hospice care, as highly specialized hospice employees support them through some of the most difficult moments in life.

Some diseases may require more specialized care and treatment than others. The hospice staff will consult with the patient's physician to talk about current symptoms, medical history, life expectancy, and most importantly patient/family wishes. They will then create an individualized plan of care to best meet the needs of the patient.

Talking about end-of-life care can sometimes be very difficult. You may have to ask and answer some extremely difficult questions and clear, caring communication is absolutely essential. Hospice of Hope has trained professionals that provide their time and personal attention to better ease your mind. They will be there to help prepare you for the tough questions and provide guidance about what to expect at each stage.

To be eligible for hospice care you first must be diagnosed with a life-limiting illness.

After the diagnosis, eligibly guidelines state that hospice care can begin when you are approaching the last six months of life expectancy. The final step of approval into the program is to gain hospice certification from a physician.

Since some physicians may hesitate to broach the subject of hospice care, you may need to bring it up yourself. Ask whether hospice care would be appropriate and which services might be most helpful to ease the end-of-life process.

You can also approach Hospice of Hope directly to ask about their services and if it is the right choice. They can provide professional guidance with the decision making process to ultimately help you choose the best options for care.

If you are facing some difficult decisions about end-of-life care, Hospice of Hope may be the answer. Call 606-759-4050 for a consultation to learn whether or not hospice services are appropriate. You have a choice when it comes to end-of-life care services – choosing earlier may be the best decision for you and/or your loved ones.

HOW TO CHOOSE:

A REAL ESTATE AGENT

When you are buying or selling a home, it is essential to choose the right real estate agent for your needs.

The best real estate agents are energetic, positive, and proactive, involved in their community, giving and outgoing. A good real estate agent cannot be shy or afraid to interact with people, but rather must be personable and communicative, outgoing with a good personality, as will need to interact with prospective customers and clients. A good agent is involved in local civic, religious, and charitable organizations, all of which permit the agent to interact with a large number of persons. These persons could not only be the person whom might take an interest in your property, but could — by word of mouth — lead to a person whom might be interested in your property.

An agent who is involved in the real estate business in a full time capacity is a plus, and an agent who has years of experience is also a plus, assuming that the agent keeps up with technological advances such as those enhanced marketing opportunities made available by the internet. Do not choose an agent only for their years of experience, but choose an agent who makes use of e-mail, the internet, and other emerging technologies and marketing capabilities available.

Selecting the wrong agent can cost you lots of time and money.

So how do you find the best agent for your situation? Here are some ideas to keep in mind.

INTERNET MARKETING/ONLINE PRESENCE

When considering whom to

MORE RESOURCES

To get a better idea about the process of buying and selling a home, conduct some research on your own. Real estate magazines contain good information and can be a great way to start your research. Ask the agent the name of their website (the agent should know it intimately). Inspect and review the website on your own, or have the agent show you the features that the website offers. Does the website appear professional? Does it appear to be current and updated? Check out some of the listings (this is especially helpful if the agent is present to show the features of the website). Is there a location map? Are there tools for helping describe the property (interactive mapping or layers of varying map types; the potential to download documents about the listings; the ability to upload multiple photos of the listings, etc.). You may find housing statistics, market forecasts and tips, but nothing beats the power of networking. You need to find people with similar interests who will help you in your endeavor. Upon successfully buying or selling your home, keep your real estate agent's contact information on hand. You may want to refer other people to him or her. You may also need their services again someday.

utilize for listing your property, see who has a good online advertising program. The internet is the "go to" approach for most buyers in today's market place and other than a good personality and the ability to interact with prospective customers and clients, is likely the most important factor to consider in choosing a real estate agent. Does your agent have a database or e-mail list of potential customers looking to buy to whom he can submit monthly e-mails to show what listings are new, under contract, sold, or back on the market? Does your agent make use of the internet to market your property? With all of the technological advances available for marketing real estate, see if the agent/agency uses the LandsOfKentucky (www.landsofkentucky.com) website. This website has outstanding mapping capabilities (make sure also that the agent you choose to utilize uses the mapping features that this site offers as the site will "auto-locate" a property based upon the address, without the boundary features being utilized. Also, if the address is not recognized, the location marker will default to the center of the zip code area rather than the property location).

The agent can not only mark the exact location of the property, but outline the approximate property boundaries in an interactive mapping program. This interactive mapping program can then be used by a prospective purchaser for setting up a drive-by so that the prospect can inspect the exterior of a property to see if it is a location that would be desirable prior to setting up an appointment. Also, the mapping capabilities of this website allow you to use layers to change the map view from a Satellite (or aerial) View, to a Map View, a Hybrid View (a combination of a satellite view with a map view), a Terrain View, a Topographical View, and it even offers a Flood Map view feature!

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

A good agent is involved in their community. Ask the agent to provide a biographical sketch to see how they participate in public functions, charitable and civic organizations (even religious organizations), any place where the agent can interact with large numbers of potential prospects. Ask how they give back to their community. Persons who are active in the public sector meet and greet a significant number of persons, and word of mouth is a valuable method of informing the public about a property and its availability, almost as important as the agent's online presence!

WHERE TO START LOOKING

Recommendations are one of the best ways to find a qualified real estate agent or realtor. Ask people in your social network for referrals.

Sometimes agents are good at helping clients purchase homes, but not as skilled at selling them. Keep that in mind when searching for the right professional.

You might also contact local brokers or search the state licensing directory online. Always work with credible, responsible agents. Otherwise you are wasting your time.

COMFORT LEVEL

At the initial consultation with a prospective real estate professional, focus on your comfort level while interacting with them.

Do you get the feeling they are genuinely concerned about your needs? Or are they focused on their commission? Do they know the current housing market? Can they negotiate a contract?

It is important that you feel comfortable with the agent. You must trust that this person can behave ethically and help you secure a good deal

COMMUNICATION AND PLANNING

Your agent should be an effective communicator. If you are selling your home, your agent should develop an effective marketing plan, explain it to you, and respond to any questions or concerns you have.

The marketing plan will probably involve placing advertisements and conducting open houses to invite the public for home viewings.

If you are purchasing a home, the agent should listen to your guidelines and price ranges.

Above all, your real estate agent needs to provide updates on progress. Do not work with someone who does not return phone calls or emails.

MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

If you or a loved one is dealing with a mental health issue, there is no need to go through it alone. Everyone goes through a challenging time during their life. It helps to find a safe place to discuss problems. People from all walks of life seek professional mental health care for issues that range from substance abuse to psychiatric issues. Qualified professional assistance might be just the thing you need to get you through. Here are some things to keep in mind when looking for a treatment center.

FLEXIBILITY

Everyone is different, needs vary from person to person, depending on your issues and diagnosis. One of your first considerations is to look for a center that does not offer a one-size-fits-all approach to healing people. The best facilities will have a wide array of treatment options. Then they will tailor their services to fit specific situations.

These centers will have a range of choices. At one end of the spectrum, there might be short-term outpatient care that can be performed in any setting, much like one-on-one counseling. At the other end, there is full-time, long-term inpatient care in a hospital setting. But most cases will be somewhere in the middle of these two choices.

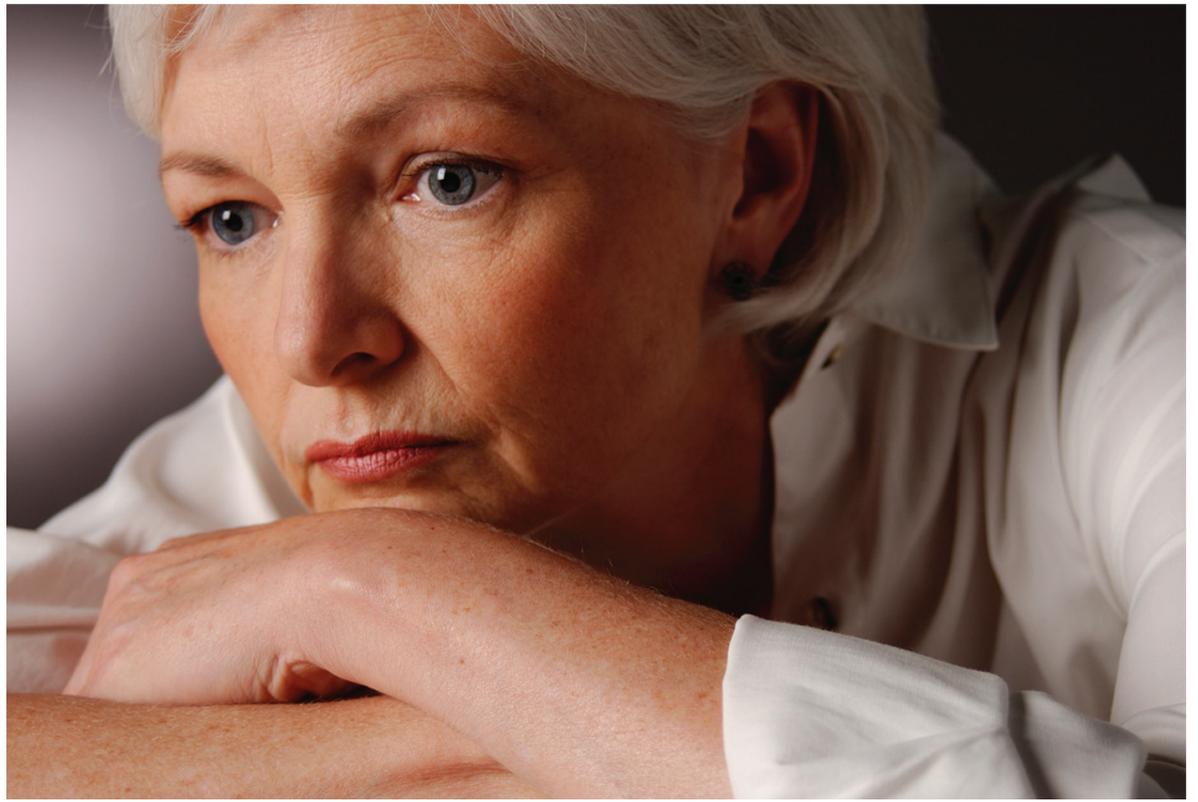

An ideal care center will be able to offer custom treatments for individuals. Whether you are seeking short or long-term care, the staff will be able to match you with the best care for your needs.

TEAM APPROACH

When people think of psychiatry, they often imagine one-on-one sessions with the patient lying on a couch. In reality, mental health care should involve a multidisciplinary approach. Psychiatrists and Psychologists are just the beginning. Other behavioral and wellness professionals can also assist in treatment.

There may be medical professionals like nurses and licensed therapists, along with social workers, case managers, teachers and therapists. It all depends on the diagnosis and desired outcome.

A good treatment center will be able to utilize a team of professionals who can work on a patient's health from multiple angles for the most successful results.

FAMILY INVOLVEMENT

When family gets involved in the treatment process, treatment has a better success rate. Mental health professionals appreciate the support that a family can give the patient.

In addition, some issues — especially addictions — often lead to emotional and stressful family struggles. It is essential that the whole family learns how to deal with these dynamics.

Education is key. The best treatment centers encourage honest, open dialogue among family members. The family must establish healthy, clear communication about the issues they've been experiencing.

Emotional, mental and substance abuse issues do not affect just an individual. Everyone feels the impact in major ways, and all of those people can become involved in supporting the right health solution for the patient and themselves.

QUALIFIED/LICENSED PROFESSIONALS

Therapist must meet certain educational requirements to be become a therapist in the United States. Each state establishes its own licensing requirements for therapist. The minimum educational credential to become a therapist is a master's degree and the completion of a certain number of supervised clinical hours. Psychiatrists are required to obtain a doctoral degree and undergo a four-year residency training. Licensure laws are intended to protect the public by limiting licensure to those persons qualified to practice as defined by state law.

ONGOING SERVICES

Reputable programs will have a strong aftercare program. They will recommend a course of ongoing, continuing care to keep the patient on track with their recovery.

This last stage can make a big difference over the long run. It will help the patient ease into daily life while still receiving continuing care.

A mental health center should be able to arrange for ongoing services, such as outpatient care, support groups or recovery residences to ensure as smooth a transition as possible once the initial, intense stages of treatment are completed.

Comprehend, Inc. is the state designated mental health care center for the Buffalo Trace Region. Comprehend was awarded the highest level of accreditation for its Mental Health, Substance Abuse and Prevention programs by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF). The CARF Accreditation is a testament to Comprehend's commitment to the continual pursuit of excellence in behavioral health services by providing the highest quality individualized care through a staff of fully licensed, dedicated and expert professionals, thereby becoming the provider and partner of choice.

A HEARING AID PROVIDER

The most important factor in your satisfaction with hearing aids is the professional who fits them. It is this specialist who does the initial hearing testing, selects the electronics of the hearing instruments and adjusts their sound quality and fit. The specialist also provides counseling in adjustment to amplification, and strategies for better hearing. The best way to choose your hearing healthcare professional is through a referral from a friend or associate. If they are happy about the way they were treated, you probably will be too.

You may purchase your hearing aids from either a Licensed Hearing Instrument Specialist or an Audiologist. Both professions offer Board Certification for their members, an advanced qualification proving their competence. Ask about their credentials.

Ask about the size of the business and the business hours. Make sure that they have adequate staff to see you when you need them. Find out if there are other locations to serve you if you relocate or are traveling.

Make sure that your specialist offers a trial period of at least 30 days. It can take several months to become completely accustomed to your hearing aids, but you should be confident that they will work for you before the trial period ends. It is common to pay a fee if you return the instruments within the trial period.

You may need several follow-up visits and regular check-ups during the years that you wear your hearing aids. Some specialists "bundle" their fees, charging one price for the hearing aids and providing all of the associated testing, service and follow-up at no charge. Others charge "a-la-carte". Either practice is acceptable, but make sure that you are aware of all of the fees when comparing professionals and the prices of hearing aids.

Of course, check to see if the practice that you are considering is a member of the Better Business Bureau. Check with the BBB to see if there is any pattern of unresolved complaints.

Hearing aids open a world of better hearing. Choose your hearing professional wisely, and listen to life again.

FACTS ABOUT HEARING LOSS

Hearing is essential to full enjoyment and participation in life. Unfortunately, today 1 in 10 Americans - over 55 million people - experience some degree of hearing loss. Hearing loss in the third leading chronic health condition among Americans, after arthritis and high blood pressure.

Prolonged loud noise is a more common cause of hearing loss than age. As future generations are exposed to ever-increasing levels of noise pollution, age will probably decrease, and environment increase, as a factor in causing hearing loss.

Noise can do more damage than you think and the risk is widespread. Every day, thousands of Americans expose themselves to noise levels that will almost inevitably lead to long-term hearing loss.*

BENEFITS OF WEARING A HEARING AID

According to a recent study, people with hearing loss who choose to hear better by using hearing aids say their decision made significant improvements in many areas of their lives. From closer relationships at home to greater independence in social settings, the study of over 2,000 adults with hearing loss clearly concludes that hearing aids improve lives.**

The study, which included 2,090 close family members and friends of hearing-im-

A model that restores freedom to doctors and provides personalized care for patients.

WHAT DOES RIVERVIEW PRIORITY CARE OFFER?

Simplicity. No deductibles, no co-pays, no insurance cards or insurance pre-authorizations. Just straightforward medical care when you need it. Simple does not mean incomplete. Direct Care is a model of healthcare that goes back to the basics. Back to the basics of care — putting priorities back in order. Back to the basics of what docs got in the business for in the first place. Helping patients. The content of this curriculum will get you there.

More care. We can spend more of our time with patients. A serious issue facing healthcare is the ever expanding amount of things required that don't directly relate to your actual care. Doctors are increasingly being required by the government or an insurance company to perform functions and complete checklists unrelated to treating patients. This means that we are not buried in unnecessary paperwork, nor are we required to do things unrelated to your actual care.

It is convenient. Why isn't your healthcare as convenient as buying a book, streaming a movie or getting a ride to the airport? Practicing this way gives us the freedom to collaborate with patients and to provide the best treatment, period. Unfortunately, there can be times where a physician cannot do something that would be beneficial because an insurance company doesn't approve because the care doesn't meet some complicated metric or one-size-fits-all "model" which has been deemed to be "appropriate care" by people unfamiliar with your situation. Generally, for each clinician engaged in patient care there are two to three people in the back office processing insurance claims, making phone calls to check on claims, etc. All of that costs a lot of money, which is why most doctors have to maintain a patient population of 5000 patients to pay their bills and make a modest income. The constant intrusion of insurance "compliance" to secure reimbursement impedes convenience. In order to see 25-35 patients each day, a doctor cannot spend as much time talking to patients. The one who loses in this scenario is the patient.

And sadly, sometimes the insurance company doesn't approve simply because they don't want to pay for that care.

At our practice, the only people who will decide the type of care that you receive will be you and your doctor.

It is free-market based. In a free market, no one forces people to buy a product nor does it tell consumers where to buy it or how they must use it. Why should it be different with healthcare? But it is. Since the passage of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, the federal government requires every breathing American to have a health plan — insurance. The insurance mandate alone is a violation of free market principles because it forces people to purchase a product whether they want to or not. To make matters worse, the feds also require that the mandated health plan include particular services, even if you do not want or need them, e.g., breast pump cover for a single 48 year old male. The federal government also controls how much the plan costs, how much doctors get paid and thousands of other aspects of your healthcare.

This avoids much of the government control by kicking bureaucrats and insurance companies out of the exam room and keeping them out of the business office. Although an insurer may provide some comfort when the fender of your automobile needs to repair following a crash, an insurance bureaucrat has no place in the exam room at your doctor's office. Government bureaucrats or insurance companies should not have a say about the medical care you receive. This type of practices protects the doctor-patient relationship in a way doctors in insurance-based practices cannot. The doctor works for you, not the insurance company.

It is affordable. Through the payment of a yearly fee, the patient secures access to high-quality, timely medical care. It functions the way a gym membership does; you pay the gym membership fee, you get unlimited access to all of the equipment and programs offered in that particular gym. Likewise at Riverview Priority Care, you gain unlimited access to all of the services provided within the practice without additional co-pays or having to meet deductibles. Just imagine getting as much as 90% of your healthcare needs for the cost of a cell phone bill!

It is patient-focused. Time is the most precious gift doctors have to give, and it is time spent with a person that contributes to the formation of a personal relationship. Nationwide surveys of doctors reveal that the number one complaint is not having the time to form a real doctor-patient relationship. Doctors are happier because they have a way to recover those relationships with their patients. Doctors get to actually provide healthcare instead of merely manage symptoms.

More private. The collection, reporting, and analysis of your medical information and electronic data has become big business in healthcare over the past few years. While this may have the potential for benefits, it also raises profound concerns. Our practice is not required to comply with any mandates regarding government reporting so your medical record remains your private record.

WHAT A DIRECT PAY PRACTICE DOESN'T OFFER.

The direct pay model works by charging you less because we eliminate the insurance companies as the middleman in your healthcare. You will pay a fraction of what we'd have to charge under the traditional model, however, if you are insured, you will have to submit claims to and interact with your insurance company yourself. We don't bill insurance, or coordinate your care with insurance companies in any way. Note that although we don't submit claims directly to your insurer, we are always happy to provide you with detailed paperwork/receipts that you can then submit to your insurance carrier.

If you have a high-deductible healthcare plan, it is likely that visits to the practice will cost you significantly less than seeing an insurance-based provider. This is due to the simple fact that until your deductible has been reached, you are basically a "cash pay" customer at your doctor's office. When you consider the accumulated effect of thousands of dollars of expensive appointments, plus coinsurance after your deductible has been met, our low and simple pricing structure should result in less expensive care.

All patients are encouraged to carry insurance, at least a high-deductible healthcare plan to provide for catastrophic care. However, if you have no insurance, you will likely find that visits to the practice will cost significantly less than seeing an insurance-based provider.

HOW TO CHOOSE:

A NURSING HOME FACILITY

Family members deserve the best care, particularly as they grow older.

A good nursing home facility can help parents, grandparents, siblings or other elderly loved ones live a happy, healthy life.

Placing them in a comfortable environment ensures that you have peace of mind knowing that they are receiving good attention and care.

There are several factors to consider when picking a care center. Making the right choice means your loved ones will enjoy happiness and longevity. It will also mean less stress for family members.

VISIT THE FACILITY

Take a tour of the potential facility. You should intuitively feel warmth and safety in this environment. Your visit will also provide clues about the general atmosphere and morale of the residents. There should be lots of natural light, cheerful colors, bright wall art and hints of laughter from the staff and patients.

Focus on the cleanliness, staffing levels and the appearance of other residents. Is the air fresh and free from unpleasant odors such as urine, feces and stale food? Are there enough nurses and attendants on duty? Are residents appropriately dressed? Do they seem clean and freshly bathed?

Bring the prospective resident along for the tour. This facility may become home. Your loved one deserves to have a voice in selecting the facility. Feeling welcomed are cues that this could be a positive living experience. Socializing is important.

Are there opportunities for residents to meet each other? Regular activities such as music and crafts or an outdoor area for enjoying the sunshine will enhance quality of life.

Most nursing home facilities are happy to provide a tour of the building. Once you see the environment, ask for a consultation with a staff member. This is an opportunity for you to ask questions and address special needs of the prospective patient.

Possible questions might include availability of physical and occupational therapy, accommodation of patients' doctors' appointments outside the facility and access to barbers and beauticians for the residents.

TALK WITH OTHERS

You might have a chance to talk with a relative of a patient who is currently living in the nursing home. Don't be afraid of asking them for honest opinions about the facility.

Query them about the staff and quality of care received by the residents. Solicit their input on whether you should place your own loved one in this facility.

These relatives are usually eager to share their experiences with you. Hearing their impressions will help ease your own anxieties about this important decision.

ASK THE DOCTOR

If you are still unsure about your decision, or if you have reservations about the facility, discuss the matter with your loved one's primary care physician. This professional should also be able to recommend good nursing facilities in your area.

The doctor may suggest additional facilities not on your original list. When your loved one has special needs, the doctor will know which facility or center can best meet these requirements.

Deciding to put a family member or loved one in a nursing facility is never easy. Carefully weigh the expectations of your family member with your impressions and the recommendations of others.

This is one of life's most difficult decisions. Taking the time and doing the research will result in a better quality of life for your loved one and peace of mind for yourself.

HOW TO CHOOSE:

A REAL ESTATE COMPANY

Whether you are contemplating your first real estate transaction or if you are a seasoned buyer and seller, having the right agent and real estate company can make all the difference. Ask friends and family who they used as their agent. Hopefully the same name will come up over and over again and that's a great place to start. Here are some ideas to keep in mind when you meet with agents.

Talk with recent clients

Ask agents to provide a list of what they've listed and sold in the past year, with contact information. Call a few of these clients and ask what they liked most and least about working with that agent and how their overall experience was.

Check for license and disciplinary actions

Check with your state's regulatory body to find out whether a prospective agent is licensed and if there have been any disciplinary actions or complaints. The information may be found online at the state's website.

How experienced is the agent

Experience is very important! An agent with years of experience has a good sense of how to handle a real estate transaction..Ultimately, what you're looking for is someone who is actively engaged in a particular area and price range. You'll want an agent to demonstrate knowledge of the area and homes in your price range.

Look at the agent's current listings

Look at how closely the agent's listings mirror the property you want to buy or sell. Are they in the same area? Is the price range similar? Does the agent have enough listings to indicate a healthy business, but not so many that you'd just be a number? You want a busy agent. Just not one who is so busy they don't have time for you! Most buyers are starting their search online these days. You want to make sure your agent has an online presence and uses the internet to advertise their listings.

Gauge the agent's knowledge of the area

A good agent should know about other properties that are available in the area. Mention a house in your area that recently has sold or is for sale. If the agent knows the property and can give you a few details, that means he or she really knows your area. This is important if you are a buyer too. You want an agent who can advise you on what offer to make and to do that the agent must know the comparable listings and sales in the area. Whether buying or selling Limestone Properties looks forward to serving you.

A FLORIST

Fresh flowers are the perfect gift for a housewarming, wedding, corporate dinner or birthday party. A beautiful arrangement creates a happy and celebratory atmosphere. It brightens up a room.

Getting just the right flower arrangement is the key to our success. A professional florist will know how to make the colors, types of flowers and even scent work for your occasion.

Family and friends may also have suggestions. Be sure to ask them for their experiences, as well as how much they paid for the services.

Funerals are the final tribute to our loved ones. Flowers express the emotions that are experienced during this time.

The casket spray symbolizes the family's love for that special person. The spray should be made from the loved one's favorite flowers and colors. It might even have a keepsake placed in the spray to salute their life accomplishments or passions.

When choosing a spray don't be limited to a few designs from a book. Darrell's Downtown Florist and Hallmark at Darrell's will work with you to create a one of a kind floral tribute. We can also help you design coordinating pieces such as standing sprays and special pieces for the casket from the grandchildren.

If you've ever been to a service with just a few flowers, it's a pretty sad event. Flowers & other tributes let the family know that others want to celebrate the life they shared with the loved one and wish to comfort the grieving family.

When an obituary says "In lieu of Flowers" you can still send a floral tribute as well as donate to their favorite charity. Think back to your own experience at the loss of a loved one. Wasn't it comforting to know others shared your loss, expressing their feelings by sending flowers and special keepsakes. Was your first thought, that they shouldn't have wasted their money on flowers that don't last or did you deeply appreciate that they took the time to let you know how much your loved ones meant to them by sending a floral tribute? We will give you suggestions about floral arrangements that fit your budget. And give you that personal style to your arrangements.

Flowers make people smile and help ease the grief of losing someone close to you. Come to Darrell's Downtown Florist and Hallmark at Darrell's and let us help you celebrate the life of your loved one. We have over 30 years of floral experience and can help you make choices that will make the loss of your loved ones a true expression of your love.

Darrell's Downtown Florist and Hallmark at Darrell's will use their experience in the floral business to design the perfect floral tribute. Don't burden your funeral director with floral choices. Flowers are our only business. We will take all the time you need to choose just the right expression of love. Even if your loved one has chosen another florist, you have the option to select the florist that you want.
