Three is definitely not a crowd in 'Happy Together'

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

With endless entertainment at the touch of a button and abundant convenience food options available, many modern couples sink into a life of relative comfort and predictability. But being comfortable can be awfully boring, especially on TV. A couple gets a taste of the sweet life in a new comedy, and so far audiences are eating it up.

Damon Wayans Jr. ("New Girl") stars as Jake Davis, a successful accountant who lives a comfortable suburban life with his wife, restaurant and bar designer Claire (Amber Stevens West, "The Carmichael Show"), in "Happy Together," airing Monday, Nov. 26, on CBS. Their lives have been turned upside down by Jake's client, Cooper James (Felix Mallard, "Neighbours"), an Australian pop star who moves in with the couple in the hopes of escaping the paparazzi after a very public breakup.

As Cooper settles in, Jake and Claire begin to realize they may not be the hip couple they used to be and worry that their lives have become mundane. Cooper's presence inspires them to explore their wild sides and get fit, but they soon discover that not acting their age has consequences. In contrast, the pop star revels in the laid-back atmosphere of Jake and Claire's suburban home, where he can relax away from the glitz and glamor of his celebrity lifestyle.

Amber Stevens West and Damon Wayans Jr. in "Happy Together"

Admittedly, it's a far-fetched premise for a sitcom, but the idea was actually inspired by a true story. Singer Harry Styles ("Dunkirk," 2017) from the British pop group One Direction once lived in the attic of producer Ben Winston's ("The Late Late Show With James Corden") humble home in London for several months. "Happy Together" may have been inspired by Styles' time living with Winston and his family, but the executive producer has made it clear that the comedy isn't a true-to-life retelling of the experience.

"Although Harry and I are producing this show together," Winston explained on Twitter in August, "it is simply loosely inspired by our living situation. NO character and NO stories are based on anything real."

Styles wasn't attached to the show in the beginning, but he has since signed on as an executive producer, alongside Winston and show creators Tim McAuliffe ("The Office") and Austen Earl ("9JKL"). Michael Rotenberg ("King of the Hill") and Jonathan Berry ("Insecure") also serve as executive producers of the new CBS comedy.

So far, ratings for the series have been modest but fairly steady, with more than four million loyal viewers regularly tuning in. That's no small feat, given the competition. "Happy Together" has held its own against such series as ABC's ratings juggernaut "Dancing with the Stars," Fox's medical drama "The Resident" and NBC's reality TV hit "The Voice."

With such an unlikely premise, the series was initially on shaky ground, but it has managed to find its footing since premiering in early October. Much of the show's appeal is thanks to the comedic chemistry between its three stars. Wayans, Stevens West and Mallard have been praised for their timing and delivery as the trio of housemates. Both Wayans and Stevens West have been rising through the ranks of American television for years. Australian actor Mallard may be a fresh face to American viewers, but in his homeland he's well known for his work on the Australian soap opera "Neighbours."

The show's supporting cast includes Stephnie Weir ("MADtv") as Claire's mother, Bonnie, a retired doctor. Victor Williams ("The King of Queens") portrays Claire's father, Gerald, a role that was originally supposed to be played by Tim Meadows ("Saturday Night Live"), who had to leave the project because of other commitments. Gerald, too, is a retired doctor. Chris Parnell ("Saturday Night Live") co-stars as Cooper's agent, Wayne.

So far, "Happy Together" is amassing an impressive list of guest stars with late night host James Corden appearing as himself in the show's pilot, along with Disney darling Peyton List ("Jessie") as Cooper's ex-girlfriend, vapid celeb Sierra Quinn. TV veteran Damon Wayans ("In Living Color"), the real-life father of series star Wayans Jr., appeared in an October episode of the show as — you guessed it — Jake's father.

It wasn't the first time the father-son duo has acted together. They have appeared together many times, most recently in Wayans Jr.'s previous series "Happy Endings." In an ew.com article, the younger Wayans joked about how he convinced his dad to guest star in his latest series.

"I had my agent call his agent," he quipped, "and after some contentious negotiating, I made the personal call and went, 'Hey, man, you're my dad.'"

In the episode of "Happy Together" featuring both Wayanses, Jake realized that his relationship with his father may not be as close as he once thought when his dad opened up to Cooper instead of him. Other storylines have explored Claire's efforts to get back into her old jeans, Jake's hopes to slam dunk again, the couple's unhealthy eating habits and Cooper's struggles to distance himself from celebrity culture.

At the end of the day, it's the strength of the performances that make the sitcom watchable, even with its unlikely premise. Stevens West, Wayans Jr. and Mallard make for an entertaining trio worth watching, so don't miss Claire, Jake and Cooper in the new episode of "Happy Together."

Robbie in "Robbie the Reindeer"

Ironman World Championship

5 18 4:30 PM

Athletes from around the globe gather to compete in a grueling Ironman triathlon event. Considered to be among the toughest athletic competitions in the world, the Ironman events consist of a 2.4-mile swim, a 112-mile bike race and 26.2-mile run.

Robbie the Reindeer

27 12 8:00 PM

Robbie the reindeer is eager to become part of Santa's sleigh-pulling team, but he must compete with Blitzen, who feels threatened by Robbie's fancy footwork. Unaware of Donner's love for him, Robbie faces the race of his life.

Pit Bulls & Parolees

ANPL 9:00 PM

Tia gets a call about dogs that have been abandoned in this new episode. As a result, she tackles the biggest rescue in Villalobos history. When they travel to the scene, they realize it's one of the worst cases of neglect Tia's ever seen.

My Big Fat American Gypsy Wedding

TLC 10:00 PM

David and Traci are excited about their upcoming Gypsy wedding, but Traci's disapproving mother threatens to ruin their special day in this new episode. Meanwhile, Lee Ann and her husband Joe argue when she plans a coming out party for their daughter.

Roger Mooking hunts for creative ways to cook with fire

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Low and slow: any barbecue lover can tell you that those are the key ingredients to perfect, mouthwatering barbecue. Whether it's Carolina-style pulled pork or brisket in the Kansas City tradition, it's that combination of a long cooking time and a low, steady heat that makes barbecue so incredible. The third ingredient, though, might be the most important of all: the fire.

It isn't just barbecue that draws Roger Mooking in Cooking Channel's "Man Fire Food," but any foods being cooked using fire, whether it's over a campfire or in a custom-made smoker. A new season of the meaty favorite premieres Wednesday, Nov. 28, and this season the host is headed all around the country to discover all the creative ways in which people put the most primal of cooking methods to use.

In this week's premiere, smoke signals pull Mooking to the Southwest, where a smokehouse in Chandler, Arizona, serves up Tennessee-style barbecue. The joint's founders show off their piping-hot brick pits and get the host to lend a hand loading them up with more than 300 pounds of pork before sharing some of their fall-off-the-bone ribs tossed in a barbecue sauce with more than a hint of spicy cayenne.

Roger Mooking hosts "Man Fire Food"

Mooking's in Las Vegas for his second stop, and at The Kitchen at Atomic he checks out a portable cooking rig called "the swing set" ; but this multi-purpose cooking contraption isn't child's play. He and chef Justin Kingsley Hall use it to hang Mediterranean spice-rubbed legs of lamb over a low heat, bury beautiful butternut squash in a bed of coals, and even hang a swinging basket that is used to grill veggies — sounds safe!

Next week, on Wednesday, Dec. 5, Mooking's journey continues as he checks out two chefs blending international techniques and flavors with American-style barbecue. In North Carolina, he hangs out with a chef who's infusing Puerto Rican flavors into his pit-smoked hogs, and in Virginia he meets a classically trained French chef who's also a champion pitmaster who builds his own cooking rigs.

Whether it's low-heat coals or big, dancing flames, fire is the oldest and most basic way to cook food — but there's nothing basic about what these chefs are doing. The new season of "Man Fire Food" premieres Wednesday, Nov. 28, on Cooking Channel.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Did Elton John ever do any acting?

A: For decades, it seemed like a one-and-done situation for Elton John. Having played the Pinball Wizard in the mid-film climax of the classic rock opera "Tommy" (1975), it seemed as if John would never act again.

How do you top such an iconic role in an iconic film? With "Bob the Builder," apparently. John's only other acting role was in the 2001 Christmas special of this popular British children's cartoon.

However, he wasn't exactly challenging himself as an actor here — he played an aspiring young singer named John (first name — no last name given) who gets his big break during the town's Christmas concert, performing "Crocodile Rock" (which is, of course, one of Elton John's classic hits).

Note, however, that all this assumes a fairly narrow definition of "acting." If we broaden it a bit, the list would include John's turn as the narrator of the 2000 DreamWorks Animation film "The Road to El Dorado," and the many, many times he played himself in sitcoms over the years.

Q: What else did the kid who played the younger version of Ben in the "It" miniseries do? For a child actor, I thought he did an excellent job.

A: On screen he did quite a lot, until he stopped.

Brandon Crane was indeed very well reviewed for his performance as Ben in the 1990 TV miniseries adaptation of "It." And that role was just one of the ones causing his star to rise in Hollywood at the time.

He had been acting on TV since 1980, when he was just four years old, but from 1989 to 1991 his career experienced a boom — he had nine different roles in that two-year period. The most notables ones were "It" and a recurring role in the classic family dramedy "The Wonder Years."

But then in 1991 he just dropped off the radar, and apart from two short films in the early '00s, he hasn't done any screen work at all.

He has, however, found new passions. His autobiography on his website says very matter-of-factly that around 1991, "I reached the awkward years and the work dried up."

Shortly after this, and after returning to high school, he discovered stage acting. "Everything I knew was wrong. There were no retakes. It was awesome."

He's been devoting himself to that while paying the bills with another new pursuit: marketing. He's also happily raising two daughters with his wife in Los Angeles.

But he hasn't totally abandoned his screen-acting past. He still appears at the occasional fan convention as the kid from "It." This side business has seen a revival of its own, thanks to the success of the 2017 big-screen version of "It." (The role of young Ben in the remake was played by new up-and-coming child star Jeremy Ray Taylor.)

Carter Oosterhouse and Taniya Nayak co-host "The Great Christmas Light Fight"

Elf

AMC 7:00 PM

Holiday hilarity ensues when Will Ferrell plays an average-sized person who was raised as an elf in the North Pole. This modern-day Christmas classic follows a grown-up Buddy (Ferrell) as he sets out to find his biological father in New York City.

The Great Christmas Light Fight

36 9 8:00 PM

Carter Oosterhouse and Taniya Nayak meet families who go all out to deck their halls in this season premiere. They visit families who showcase dazzling light displays, incredible trees and whimsical dioramas in the hopes of winning the $50,000 prize.

9-1-1

19 9:00 PM

The first responders deal with holiday-related incidents in this new episode. They're called to the scene of a toy stampede at a toy store and help when a mistletoe stunt goes awry. Meanwhile, Bobby (Peter Krause) contemplates his future.

Manifest

5 18 10:00 PM

Determined to save the other missing passengers, Ben (Josh Dallas) and Michaela (Melissa Roxburgh) put everything on the line in this new episode. Unfortunately, their plan doesn't go as smoothly as they'd hoped and not everyone survives.

Santa and Rudolph in "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer"

Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer

27 12 8:00 PM

A holiday song about a misfit reindeer with a red nose comes to life in this timeless stop-motion animated special. After he's teased for being different, Rudolph and his elf friend, Hermey, run away. Burl Ives lends his voice as the snowman narrator.

Vegas Rat Rods

DISC 9:00 PM

In this new episode, Steve must find a way to meet the high standards of his business partners — sisters Donnalee and Stacy. He gets to work designing a tour bus that represents WelderUp, and later stands to make a good profit on an unusual flip.

Wednesday Best Bets

Chrissy Teigen and John Legend as seen in "A Legendary Christmas With John and Chrissy"

Empire

19 8:00 PM

Lucious (Terrence Howard) and Cookie's (Taraji P. Henson) relationship is strained by financial pressure in this new episode. Elsewhere, Kai (Toby Onwumere) isn't happy when Jamal (Jussie Smollett) announces their engagement on live TV.

Vikings

HIST 9:00 PM

Legendary Viking Duke Rollo (Clive Standen) causes upheaval when he arrives in Kattegat in this new episode. Meanwhile, the community is still reeling from the news that Ivar the Boneless (Alex Høgh Andersen) has been crowned the new king.

Chrisley Knows Best

USA 9:00 PM

While Chase prepares to open his own candle business, Julie and Todd clash over their opinions for the new restaurant in the first of back-to-back new episodes. Later, Todd gets roped into going to Universal Orlando to celebrate Grayson's birthday.

A Legendary Christmas With John and Chrissy

5 18 10:00 PM

John Legend and Chrissy Teigen invite viewers to celebrate the holidays with their friends, family and special guests in this premiere music special. The program features songs from Legend's brand new Christmas album.
